GERMANS NOW ADMIT EMPEROR FOILED

European War Talk Simmers
Down Considerably.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS SCARCE

Prime Minister Asquith and Mr. Balfour Both Speak Earnestly on Moroccan Squabble and Dangers Involved, but Gravity of These Utterances Help to Improve the Situation—Believed Nations Interested Will Yet Solve Problem Amicably.

London, July 28.—As far as actual information, either official or semi-official, is concerned, there is no new development in the Moroccan situation. From this point of view matters stand where they have stood for a week past. Nevertheless the situation may be regarded as easier.

Its difficulties and dangers are obvious and undesirable, otherwise such words as were spoken in the house of commons by Prime Minister Asquith and Mr. Balfour would not have been uttered. But the seriousness and gravity of these utterances themselves improve the situation. There is nothing really new in what was said either by the premier or the leader of the opposition. Mr. Asquith dotted the "i's" and crossed the "t's" of his first pronouncement and Lloyd George's Mansion House speech.

The German press is intermittently philosophic and truculent. Both attitudes indicate consciousness that Germany's attempt at a big coup has failed this time. There is no need to emphasize the significance of certain precautionary measures taken in all three countries concerned.

TRAIN OF EXCURSIONISTS MEETS A SAD FATE IN A HEAD-ON COLLISION

Train Crashes Into Freight In Railroad Yards.

EIGHT ARE KILLED OUTRIGHT

Nearly All of 900 Passengers More or Less Seriously Injured—String of Boxcars Obscured Sight of Freight Train From Engineer of Speeding Passenger—Freight Engine Driven Back Through Three Cars—Accident at Hamlet, N. C.

Charlotte, N. C., July 28.—As the result of a head-on collision between a colored excursion train bound from Durham to Charlotte, via the Seaboard railroad, and a freight train in the Hamlet yards, eight excursionists are dead, 59 seriously injured and 28 painfully hurt.

Four members of the passenger and freight crews are seriously injured. Seventy-eight of the injured were rushed to Charlotte on a special train, and many additional deaths are expected.

The collision occurred on a curve, the engineers being unable to see each other's train on account of boxcars on a siding. The freight was running slow and the excursion was going at top speed. As a result the freight engine was driven back through several cars. The light coaches of the excursion train telescoped, and almost every passenger, numbering over 900, was either killed, injured or bruised.

Murdered in Hotel Room.
New York July 28.—Murdered, apparently by burglars William Henry Jackson, 70, was found dead on the floor of his bedroom at the Hotel Iroquois. The body was covered with bruises.

Affinity Tells Story Different

Binford Girl Admits Being Cause of Beattie Murder.

Richmond, Va., July 28.—That their evidence against Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., charged with the murder of his wife, was made practically complete by confession from Beulah Binford, the "other woman," was the assertion of detectives.

A written statement by the Binford girl, which it was said repudiates much of her testimony at the coroner's inquest, is now in the hands of Special Prosecutor L. O. Wendenburg.

"Without saying anything to incriminate herself, the girl has made statements proving absolutely that she was the motive for the crime," said Detective Scherer. "She has admitted that she didn't come back to Richmond by accident, but that Beattie brought her here. She says that Beattie frequently told her he wished he could get rid of his wife."

Akron Jail Is Guarded

Deputies With Riot Guns Protect Man Held For Assault.

Akron, O., July 28.—Fearing an attempt would be made to take John Kelly, 24, of Youngstown, from the county jail, with a view to avenging the confessed assault on Audra Martin, 2 years old, Sheriff David Ferguson called in all his deputies and armed them with riot guns. Kelly was arrested at Cleveland and when brought here before Justice Koplin waived arraignment. Bond was fixed at $5,000 and later raised to $25,000.

Substantiates Father's Confession.
Washington, July 28.—Expressing his firm conviction that his father, former State Senator D. W. Holstlaw, received $2,500 from a man who offered to pay him that sum to vote for Lorimer for the senate, Herschel D. Holstlaw of Iuka, Ill., appeared before the senate Lorimer committee and substantiated his father's famous confession.

Traction Magnate as Lifesaver.
Cincinnati, O., July 28.—J. Kelsey Schoepf, president of the Cincinnati Traction company, prevented a murder at his country home at Glendale, by his prompt action in telling Andrew Baulig, who was pursuing Joseph Holland, whom Baulig had shot.

PROBE FOR MONEY TRUST IS WANTED

Lindbergh Says Bankers Control
Country's Destinies.

CAN CREATE PANICS AT WILL

Representative Presents Strong Argument Before House Committee on Rules and Investigation Is Ordered, but Whether Monetary Commission or Committee on Banking Will Do Work Not Yet Determined—Weeks Derides Idea, but Indorses Inquiry.

Washington, July 28.—Congress is to undertake the task of investigating the "money trust" of Wall street. In order to determine whether there is a great banking combination which has the power to control credit, exchanges and deposits and to bring on business depression and panics, as charged by Representative Lindbergh of Minnesota before the house committee on rules, the committee at its next meeting will report a resolution directing an exhaustive investigation of the subject.

No decision has been reached as to whether the inquiry shall be conducted by the monetary commission or by the house committee on banking and currency. Mr. Lindbergh does not care who makes the investigation so long as it does something.

Representative Weeks of Massachusetts, who is a member of the monetary commission and a banker, also appeared before the rules committee on the Lindbergh resolution. While he did not oppose the inquiry, and indeed rather urged that the monetary commission be instructed to make it, he scoffed at the idea that there was such a thing as a "money trust."

"If I had the time," he said, "I could show this committee that such a thing as an efficient combination of capital in banking matters could not exist."

Nelson Propounds Puzzler.
"But," suggested Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, a member of the rules committee, "could such a money trust not go beyond banking and yet affect banking?" Mr. Weeks admitted that this might be the case.

The Lindbergh resolution recites that "our present system of money exchange and credit entails on the people enormous losses due presumably to speculation, gambling and manipulation," and declares that these practices are directed through well-defined centers, the greatest of which it is believed does actually have the power of controlling credit, exchange and deposits, to the extent of being actually able to bring on business depressions and even business disaster."

Representative Lindbergh, who is a radical Republican insurgent, in arguing in favor of his resolution insisted that the importance of the subject can not be overestimated.

Miss Emilie Grigsby, Beautiful
New York Girl, Arouses England

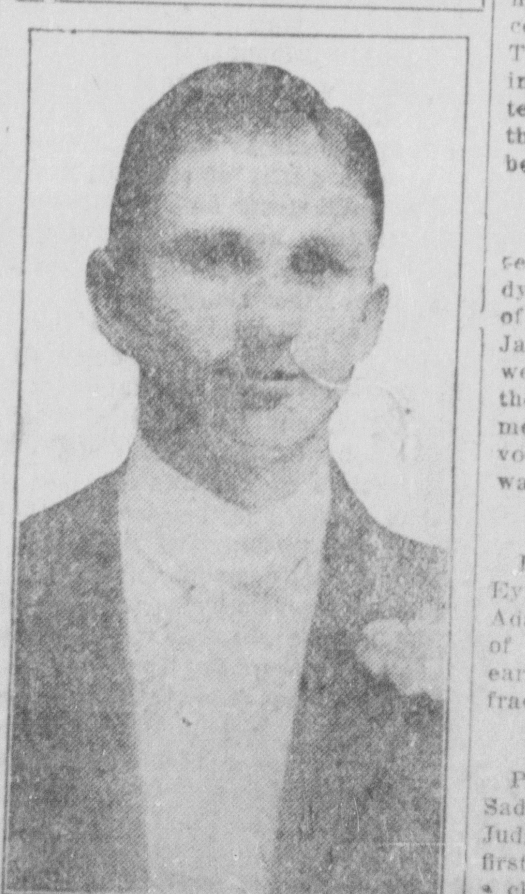

MISS EMILIE GRIGSBY, a beautiful American girl who came into prominence after the death of Charles T. Yerkes a few years ago when it became known that the street railway magnate had given her real estate, stocks and bonds aggregating $4,000,000, has recently caused a tremendous social sensation in England. While she was a resident of New York she tried to enter "society," and for a time she was received by people of prominence. But the stories that were told about her became so well known that she was dropped by her fashionable friends, and in spite of her beauty, charm of manner and her wealth she made little progress with New York's smart set. Some time after Yerkes' death she went to England, and for a time she was much more successful over there. She met members of the nobility and was even said to be on terms of intimacy with members of the royal family. Indeed, she attended the coronation of King George and Queen Mary in Westminster abbey, a ceremony which was witnessed by few Americans and to which money and influence could not gain tickets of admission. New York papers printed the story together with the facts concerning the young woman's American career, and a sensation was caused in England. Efforts were made to learn by what mysterious means Miss Grigsby, absolutely without sponsors or credentials, had achieved her purpose, but so far the efforts have not been successful.

Admits Mistreating Girl.
Gallipolis, O., July 28.—Captured by a posse of farmers and lashed with a buggy whip until he confessed, George Butcher, 32, is a prisoner in the county jail, charged with having enticed 5-year-old Merl Balden to an outhouse near her home, and there mistreating her.

Accused of More Murders.
San Francisco, July 28.—Dr. L. C. Chisholm, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of J. D. Powell, is suspected of having killed Miss Nina Pans and six other persons.

CLETUS A. WILLAMAN
Electrocuted For Murder of Wife's Parents at Canton.

Pays The Penalty For Crime

Willaman Dies In Chair With Psalm
On Lips.

Columbus, O., July 28.—Cletus Willaman, under 30 years of age, was electrocuted just after midnight in the Ohio penitentiary for the murder of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Koons, in Canton. His wife and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Willaman, were present at the prison until about 10 p. m. Willaman has claimed that if he killed the couple he has no recollection of it. The electrocution passed off without incident, except that Willaman muttered selections from the Twenty-third psalm as the death mask was being adjusted.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded.
Huntington, W. Va., July 28.—Lawrence Bicker of Jackson, Ky., is dying in a hospital here as the result of being shot by his brother-in-law, James Smith. Bicker and Smith were having a photograph taken at their home and at the critical moment each was to snap an empty revolver at each other. Smith's gun was loaded.

Skull Fractured by Ball.
Portsmouth, O., July 28.—Otis Eyre, 27, a schoolteacher at Seaman, Adams county, died there as a result of having been hit behind his left ear by a baseball. His skull was fractured.

Hold Negro For Killing Baby.
Portsmouth, O., July 28.—Wilbur Saddler, 30, negro, was indicted by Judge Blair's special grand jury for first degree murder in the killing of a child but one day old.

WOOL REVISION PASSED BY THE UPPER BRANCH REGULARS ARE ROUTED

Democrats and Insurgents Carry Measure Through.

Washington, July 28.—By a vote of 48 to 32, the senate passed the LaFollette wool revision bill, offered as a compromise between Senator LaFollette's original substitute and the Underwood bill as it came from the house. The bill was passed by the votes of all of the Democrats voting, all of the insurgents except two—Brah and Dixon—and with the votes of two regular Republicans, McCumbe of North Dakota and Nelson of Minnesota.

The bill carries a duty of 35 per cent on raw wool and makes a corresponding reduction in the manufactures of wool. The bill will go to the house and to a conference committee of the two houses, and it is expected the result will be a bill revising the woolen schedule on a basis of 30 per cent for raw wool and corresponding reductions in the manufactures of wool as they now appear in the bill which passed the senate.

Made Impassioned Speech.
Senator LaFollette occupied nearly two hours in an impassioned speech in defense of his bill, offered as a substitute for the Underwood house bill. The first vote came on Senator LaFollette's first substitute, which carried 40 per cent on raw wool. This was rejected by a vote of 14 yeas to 66 nays.

The next vote came on the Underwood bill, and it was rejected—26 yeas to 44 nays.

BELLBOY NOW ADMITS KILLING WM. H. JACKSON DETAILS SHOW DEPRAVITY

Confession Clears Mystery of New York Hotel.

New York, July 28.—Paul Geidel, a 17-year-old bellboy employed in the Iroquois hotel up to last Friday, was arrested at his home and taken directly to police headquarters, where Commissioner Dougherty charged him with the murder of William Henry Jackson, the wealthy broker, who was found dead in his apartments in the Iroquois.

Soon after his arrival at police headquarters, young Geidel said that he had entered the hotel through the basement and had crawled through a bathroom window connecting with the aged man's bedroom.

Geidel said he had then saturated a washcloth with chloroform and, rushing to the bed where his intended victim lay awake, had forced the cloth to his face. Mr. Jackson, despite his age, had struggled to his feet. Geidel declared, and a fierce struggle ensued. The boy finally overpowered his victim, stuffed the cloth into his mouth, ransacked the room and escaped.

Streetcar Kills Boy.

SCHOOL BOARD IMPATIENT ARCHITECTS DELAY CAUSES A FORMAL ACTION

Attendance Here Was Required
on Monday

VARIANCE IN THE PLANS

All is Explained in the End and Everyone is Happy.

For some little time it has been rumored that the firm of architects, Howard and Merriam, of Columbus, employed by the local Board of Education to furnish plans and specifications for the Cherry Hill school house and the new High School Building, have not shown as much activity in local matters as the School Board desired, and that there was a marked discrepancy in the plans and specifications submitted to the Board and those furnished to Contractor Fenzel, of Athens, who is constructing the Cherry Hill school building.

These rumors were so persistent, and so widely different, that members of the Board were approached by THE HERALD, in order to ascertain the true state of affairs, and it develops that the Board did take action by adopting a resolution to hurry up the architects, and that there was some little difference in the plans of the Cherry Hill school building furnished the Board and the contractor. Everything, however, has been untangled and affairs are running along as smoothly as possible, with the exception that work on the Cherry Hill building is at a standstill because, as reported, of delay in a consignment of Bedford stone which must go into the walls before they can be built higher.

At a meeting of the Board held last week, the long delay of the architects in furnishing plans for the new High school building was taken up once more, and, as it was believed the architects had been given ample time in which to furnish the plans, the Board passed a resolution requiring one of the architects to be present with plans for the new building not later than last Monday night. This polite manner of urging the architects brought the result, and Mr. Howard was present with a set of plans which pleased the Board. It developed that the firm of architects had neglected to prepare plans for the local building, in an attempt to land an $800,000 contract awarded by the state, and which they secured in due time.

These plans for the new High school building will be taken up by the board next Monday night, and unless something unforeseen occurs they will be accepted, as they call for a splendid structure that should please every one. It seems safe to say in view of what has transpired, that the architects will be more careful of delay in future and give more attention to local work.

Regarding the variation in plans and specifications furnished the Board and those furnished the contractor for the Cherry Hill building, it developed that the contractor was proceeding with the construction of a solid wall or walls in certain basement rooms to be used for storage purposes, when the plans furnished the Board called for windows in the walls. Other minor changes are said to have been made without consulting the Board.

The architect was called down at that time, several weeks ago, and appeared before the Board, unraveling the tangle by explaining that the State Building Inspector had ordered the change in plans, and that in the hurry he had forgotten to take the matter up with the Board. A member of the Board stated that the change would not in any way cut down the cost of construction, and that, with the exception of the solid walls, the changes were approved by the Board. The solid walls were ordered changed, and the changes made by inserting the windows.

The Board is well pleased with the manner in which the new building is being constructed, but some of the members are impatient at the present delay, which, it is claimed, was unavoidable, although no work has been done on the structure for a week or more.

It is asserted that just as soon as the shipment of stone arrives the walls will be carried on up, and rapid progress should be made.

Efforts will be made to have the foundation walls of the High school building laid this fall. The excavation will not be over three or four feet in depth in the new building.

Liberal Alimony Awarded Mrs. Edington

Mrs. Clara Edington, who brought suit for divorce from Allen Edington in Ross county some time ago, being represented by Attorney Tom S. Maddox of this city, was awarded a divorce and $1075 alimony in the Ross county probate court Thursday.

The divorce was awarded on the grounds of extreme cruelty, and arrangements made for settling the alimony judgment. Mrs. Edington was also restored to her maiden name of Clara Bell Looker. Both parties to the suit are known in this city.

A Novel Fine.

An Englishwoman in the Rivera stepped on the footboard of a train, intending to enter the carriage, but found the door locked. The train started suddenly and she recognized that she would have to travel on the footboard until the next station was reached. A man who saw her plight crept backward on the footboards, stepping from carriage to carriage with some peril and supported her with his arm until the next station was reached, half an hour later. The woman was fined several francs for "illegally traveling outside the train." The rescuer disappeared without leaving name or address.

Mrs. Brown—I was downtown yesterday. I didn't know but I might meet you. Mrs. Greene—I was downtown, too, and I'm awfully sorry I didn't see you. Little Johnny Greene—Ma, don't you remember we saw Mrs. Brown's dog and you said: "Come, let's hurry away from here. That old cat must be somewhere near." What old cat did you mean, ma?

Peculiar.

"I do not understand it," said the philosopher.

Better Than Konek.

An individual at Temesvar has surpassed the famous Captain von Konek; in fact, the German shoemaker is nowhere. The Temesvar has engaged a gang of thirty workmen, went to a distillery which was closed and instructed them to dismantle it. Following this exploit he demolished a fountain and then sold it with the distillery fittings for old metal. Next he turned his operations upon an avenue and cut down all the trees and sold the wood to a carpenter. Then he vanished into space, and the good people of Temesvar are still in a state of ferment.—London Globe.

Next Season's Skirts.

The Ladies' Tailors' association, which was in annual session in New York recently, wrestled with the skirt problem, but the question as to the cut and width of that garment for the coming season was not decided. It was left with a style committee, which is still deliberating. No report has been made, but hints have been dropped to the effect that the "freak skirts" will have no place in fall and winter styles. Commenting on this, a fashionable dressmaker said: "These people may argue, demonstrate and write to their hearts' content, but what they say and do will have little weight, for the time has not yet come when we can create styles for women in this country. The fashionable skirt next season will be what it has always been—made in Paris."—New York Tribune.

D. T. & I. Railroad Burning Old Cars

The D. T. & I. railroad has commenced destroying the old discarded cars which have been shifted to sidings and dumped into the ditch, and it is said that a large number of the several hundred cars lining the Grasshopper Railroad near Jeffersonville will meet the same fate as those which have been consigned to the ash pile.

The work of burning the cars commenced in Springfield, but the company was compelled to remove the cars from the corporation before the work of destruction was completed. A year ago several hundred of the old cars were placed in the ditch along the Grasshopper railroad, and they have not been touched since that time.

ACTIVITY IN LAND DEALS FOLLOWS STRIKE OF OIL IN HEROD'S CREEK FIELD

The landowners in Concord township, Ross county, in the neighborhood of Harper's Station are seeing visions of many wells from which come barrels of oil and unlimited millions of feet of gas and are dreaming of the barrels of money to result therefrom, says the Chillicothe News Advertiser. Others are also seeing visions of underground wealth and are trying to get into the golden shower by securing leases on all the land in the vicinity.

Hon. L. M. Day, of Chillicothe, who says there will be hundreds of leases taken, heads the list of lease-takers by filing, on Thursday morning, two leases in the county recorder's office. One is from A. R. and Mattie Darley for the "Jeff Acton" farm of 100 acres and the "Tom Johnson" farm of 110 acres. Another is from Ella B. Ater for the Lane farm of 211 acres.

The terms of an oil and gas lease, besides a money consideration, which in the above cases, is stated to be "One dollar and other considerations" provide generally that the landowners shall have a certain amount of the oil or gas found, in the above leases the amount being placed at one-eighth. The lessees are also to bury all pipe lines and to pay for any damage to growing crops. They are to drill no well nearer than 250 feet to any residence building. Each party is to have permission to use gas, the lessee to run machinery at the well and the lessor for light and heat. In general these are the terms of a typical oil lease though sometimes a royalty is paid on every barrel of oil produced.

WHAT'S IN A NAME.

Whether there is a legal distinction between so-called fortune telling and horoscope casting is the problem, involving a constitutional question, the Supreme court of the state of Washington will be called upon to decide on an appeal in the case against "Professor" F. F. Heitzel, astrologer, who was fined $25 and costs for alleged violation of an ordinance, which classes fortune tellers as vagrants.

Officials of the National Astrological Society, with headquarters at St. Paul, have engaged local counsel to make a test case of the conviction of Neitzel, who, testifying in his own behalf, said he was working out a mathematical calculation in drawing the horoscope for William Ulrich, a Spokane city detective, who caused the arrest.

George H. Crandall, counsel for the defense, gave out this statement regarding an appeal to the State Supreme court:

"So far as we have been able to learn there has been no ruling by any court of record in the United States bearing directly on the question. The constitutional point involved is whether astrology can be construed as fortune telling or if it comes under the provision which grants freedom to all religious beliefs. The case is of interest to every municipality of the entire country."

"Professor" Neitzel said he knew there would be trouble the moment Detective Ulrich visited his studio, adding:

"Mars, the planet of war, was in the twelfth house of the sun, which means imprisonment and misfortune. The horoscope was wrong, wholly because the detective did not tell the truth. I admitted that in the police court, though Ulrich alone is to blame for the error.

"Astrology is a religion, but without the worship and prayer features. We shall defend our cause along that line."

It does seem that during the past few years the officials of the various states, especially in the larger cities, have been compelled to rack their brains in the effort to weed out that fraud and viciousness which though clearly defined and made the subject of penalty in the criminal codes, has been hiding behind the shield of the name "religion".

This task has proven as it always does an exceedingly difficult one, owing to the added barriers of legal technicalities.

Many designing rascals find these two obstructions to swift and certain justice of almost incalculable aid to them in successfully working, for quite a long time at least, some of the most vicious purposes which can be conceived by man's brain.

With the growth of man's intellectual power there must be a much clearer line drawn around true religion than is yet generally recognized and there must be a breaking down of many legal barriers before the higher law comes into its own.

Of course every man knows that any movement which tends to degradation of man morally or to gain from the industrious the fruits of honest toil without giving its equivalent in return, cannot possibly be any religion. Courts know that to be true yet, the law's technicalities so hedge about, in an effort to protect religious views, that in order to secure a great measure of protection which means success of their plans, all that is necessary is tack "religion" at the mast head and justice is warded off indefinitely.

Break down the barriers and go straight to the root of the trouble and there will be fewer "religions" sprouting up in this country.

Why should the law attach so much importance to a name anyway?

The people who make the laws do not.

WHY.

Another human being has gone over Niagara Falls and lives to tell the tale.

Bobby Leach, 49 years old, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Monday made the trip over the Horse Shoe falls in a barrel.

Though he was severely battered and bruised in the drop of 158 feet over the brink of the cataract, he suffered only superficial injuries and by nightfall was able to be about his home. This is the second time in the history of the river that the cataract has ever been successfully navigated. Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor of Niagara Falls, made the trip in a barrel on October 24, 1901, and came out alive.

Why was this man, who lived by the falls all his life so determined to make the perilous voyage through the rapids and over the precipice? Most people will say that it was foolhardy. Possibly it was, but in years to come that apparently foolhardy act may serve a purpose. Doesn't look probable now that it would, however.

This man was compelled to dodge the police of two nations, but he eluded them and made the trip.

He had listened to the roar of the cataract all his life and his eyes had become accustomed to nature's marvelous exhibition of power. He grew familiar with the angry but magnificent monster and was possessed of an uncontrollable desire to show to the world that he could pass all the dangers which menaced and escape with his life, and he did it.

But why he did it and what good will come of it none there are who can now say.

POETRY FOR TODAY

THE CHARM OF DIRT.

Take 'em just the way they are,
Dirty faced and tattered clothes,
Playing boat or trolley car,
Tell me what else sweeter grows?
Mother wants 'em primed and curly,
Starched and shiny all the day,
She's for dressing children early,
But I love 'em anyway.

Playing soldier, torn and tattered,
See them marching down the street
Little garments mud be-spattered,
See their brown and dusty feet,
Wind-blown hair and paddies frightful,
Seems you can not keep them clean;
But they're none the less delightful,
Sweetest things I've ever seen.

Makes no difference how you dress 'em,
They're as sweet as they can be;
And I smile and say: "God bless 'em"

When their dirty hands I see,
Though their mother frets about it
And would always have 'em neat,
I declare, and do you doubt it?
Though they're dirty, they are sweet.

Take 'em just the way you find 'em,
Tattered clothes and smudgy noses,
Leaving mud tracks out behind 'em,
They are sweeter than the roses.
Yes, with all the dirt that's on 'em
At the ending of the day,
I just love to gaze upon 'em,
They are lovely anyway.

How to Prevent Finger Cracks.

The troublesome cracks that sometimes come in the fingers near the nails are best treated by applying a small piece of surgeon's plaster over the place until healed. The cracks can be prevented by frequently soaking the finger ends in warm oil, and oil of some kind should be applied immediately after taking the hands out of water. These cracks are quite different from chapped hands and require different treatment.

THE LADY REVISES.

By Stuart B. Stone.

Often had young Ellis Lawrence Dunraven longed in his heart to pen an ode to the eyebrow of his fair mistress. Like all true poets he had written of this, that and the other—but never had he dared to pen lines to Miss Pamela Higgins. For the lady called a spade a spade, and saw no beauty in the purple dawn.

In an hour such as all true poets have, however, young Dunraven succumbed. The result was an 80-line poem about Mistress Pamela Higgins. Then Pegasus fell with a bump and a sprawl, and the poet was afraid to go and tell the lady. At last, however, the beauty of it all worked on him again and he buckled on a white vest and the kind of a limp, soiled lavender tie that poets affect, and told her all about it.

"It is called 'Lines to Aphrodite,'" said the poet.

"Humph," scoffed Mrs. Higgins. "As I remember, Miss Aphrodite was a rather flighty goddess. If this poem is about me, you call it 'Lines to Pamela Higgins.'"

"Ye-es," stammered young Dunraven, in confused delight. "That is the idea, if you will permit. It will disturb the rhythm a little, but I can remedy that."

Dunraven read, the hectic flush of poetry in his cheek: "O, Aphrodite, fairest god of Greece—"

"Look here!" snapped Miss Higgins. "What did I tell you about that mythological nonsense. You change that line to 'O, Pamela Higgins, most beautiful maid in Caneyville!'"

"But," faltered Ellis Lawrence Dunraven, "the meter—the rhythm—the feet!"

"Very well," said Miss Higgins. "Go sit by the seashore and read it to the sea gulls by the light of the harvest moon, then. I will have no such nonsense about me." She brought her fist down upon the center table and picked up the Standard Cook Book.

"All right," agreed Dunraven, and changed the line; then read on: "Lovely deity, drifting on foam-flecked waters—"

"Make that 'Lovely sweetheart, sweeping floors and baking pies,'" commanded Miss Higgins.

With a gasp of despair the poet changed the golden lines. "Now read the rest," snapped the lady.

"Take thou my heart, my life, my love; And sail me o'er golden, endless seas."

Miss Higgins cackled derisively, while young Dunraven glowed with the fervor of love and trembled in the depths of poetic despair.

"You'll have to change that," ordered his idol. "Make it:

"Will you not wed with me, my handy girl, And cook and mend and stitch for me forever."

Young Dunraven groaned, but made the change. Miss Higgins leaned eagerly forward and half-closed her eyes. They were not at all chill blue now, but rather the blue of the southern sky.

"Ah, that is a beautiful poem," she murmured, "and the answer is 'Yes.'"

"What answer?" gasped Young Dunraven.

"Read the poem, stupid," she ordered.

"O, Pamela Higgins, most beautiful maid in Caneyville, Lovely sweetheart, sweeping floors and baking pies, Will you not wed with me, my handy girl, And cook and mend and stitch for me forever."

"Ah," he murmured, "It is exquisite sentiment!"

"It's business," assented Miss Higgins.

Eye of the Camera Is Keen.

Often the eye of the camera will decipher documents of which the writing had been substantially obliterated by age, says a writer in Van Norden's Magazine. I have successfully copied with the camera the utterly faded photograph of a classmate of forty years previous.

Changes in the pigment of the skin, undiscovered by the eye, appear with distinctness on the sensitive plate, and it is said that ample warning of approaching disease had been thereby given.

The camera takes pictures of subjects which cannot be made to appear on the ground glass and of those which the eye of man has never seen. The human eye can penetrate space no further in an hour than in a single instant. Yet the eye of the camera will gaze into the sky for hours, looking deeper and seeing more with each second that passes.

Through this attribute of the camera a great chart of the heavens is now being made. In this work distinguished astronomers and photographers throughout the world are co-operating. Yet not one in a hundred of the stars already plainly pictured by them was ever seen by the unaided eye of scientists.

"Miss Columbia" and "Uncle Sam" Appear In Sunday School Parade

BROOKLYN has an annual Sunday school parade that is one of the big events of that section of Greater New York. President Taft reviewed the last parade, in which thousands of children took part. One of the amusing and interesting features of the parade was the appearance of a tiny boy and an equally tiny girl representing Uncle Sam and Miss Columbia. They were quite dignified for their years, and their quaint costumes made them striking figures.

HOW BILLIARDS ORIGINATED.

London Pawnbroker Invented the Game in His Leisure Hours.

It is a fact not generally known that the game of billiards was invented by a pawnbroker, William Kew by name, who flourished in London some time in the sixteenth century.

This inventive avuncular relative of the needy used to employ his leisure hours in wet weather when trade was dull by taking down the three balls which were the insignia of his profession and pushing them about the counter of his shop with a yard stick, after the manner of the game as at present played, and using boxes fastened to the sides of his counter for pockets.

Out of this was developed a table with a fence of slight elevation about it to keep the balls from rolling on the floor and to enable the player to make what have since become known as cushion shots.

Champagne Corks.

The manufacture of the best kind of corks, those made for champagne bottles, are never entrusted to machines. The ordinary common cork is made by machinery, but the best work invariably is done by human hands, and the champagne cork cannot be trusted to a machine. All the blemishes in the cork have to be taken into consideration, so this work is done by hand labor.

His Reward.

"I wonder what they will do about the reward for that diamond necklace of Bingleton's?" said Dawson. "He offered a thousand dollars for the arrest of the thief, and the fellow was arrested the other night by one of the police dogs." "There will be no trouble about that," said the Genial Idiot. "They'll give the dog a thousand bones."—Harper's Weekly.

Q.—Is the world growing worse? If, not, what does the Apostle Paul mean by the words, "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived"? (II Timothy iii, 13.)

Answer.—In some respects the world was never better than it is today. We know of no time in history when the public press so fearlessly and boldly exposed wrong, doing as now. Education has helped to bring about a better moral condition. Of course a great deal of this morality is on the surface, as it was in the closing days of the Jewish Age, when Jesus told the chief religionists that they were whited walls, outwardly beautiful, but inwardly corrupt. The Apostle, in the Scripture to which you refer, evidently had in mind the deceivers and leaders astray in the Church. These, in the end of the Age, will become more bold; as foretold, their deceptions will become strong delusions, following which many will believe a lie (II Thessalonians ii, 11). "They shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils" (I Timothy iv, 1). Many theological teachers today are denying the Bible and advancing strong arguments in favor of Higher Criticism, Evolution, etc., thus growing worse and worse in repudiating the "faith once delivered to the saints" (Jude 3, 4), "deceiving and being themselves deceived."

Fast Train Hits Auto At Crossing

Four, Including Ohio Teacher, Ground to Pieces.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 28.—Four women and one man were thrown from an automobile when it was hit by a fast Pennsylvania train at the Relexa street crossing in Wilkensburg. The man and three women were ground to death and the fourth woman was badly hurt. She is unconscious in the Columbia hospital, but will likely recover.

The dead: Edward S. Batchelor; Mrs. Mary F. Batchelor, mother of Edward S. Batchelor; Mrs. John S. Reed; Miss Mary Fearnley, a teacher in the Margaret Morrison Carnegie technical schools.

All the victims resided in Wilkensburg. Miss Fearnley's home was in Cincinnati, she having been making her home with her aunt, Mrs. Batchelor, while teaching in the Morrison schools.

The automobile was struck with terrific force, thrown 250 feet ahead of the train and lifted by the cow-catcher and carried 500 yards. The engineer of the train finally brought the express to a stop. He found parts of the mangled bodies lying along the track and parts wedged in the framework of the pilot. Miss Reed was found lying alongside the railroad track unconscious and was hurried to Columbia hospital.

TRACTION PLOWING

On the large farms of the Great Plains and the ranches of California traction engines—both steam and gasoline—are used to an increasing extent in farming operations, especially in plowing land. The makeshift outfits formerly used for this purpose have been largely replaced by heavier and stronger engines and gang plows especially designed for this use.

The advantages of traction plowing are (1) that the work can be rushed when conditions are favorable; (2) that the work can be done with a smaller force of hands, and fewer horses have to be kept; (3) in hot dry weather engines can be used when horses could not stand the work; (4) with an engine it is possible to plow very difficult soils, and also to plow deeper than with horses; and (5) under favorable conditions, the cost of traction plowing has been brought lower than that of plowing with horses.

The steam engines weigh from 7 to 20 tons, range from 20 to 50 horsepower, cost from $1,500 to $6,000, and will plow from 15 to 50 acres a day.

A traction plowing outfit consists of (1) an engine; (2) the plows or disks arranged in gangs; and (3) miscellaneous conveniences for carrying supplies, making repairs, etc. The size and cost of the outfit and the amount of work it will do depend largely on the number of plows operated.

Train Wreck Recalled

Four Men Arrested For Attempting to Ditch Troop Train.

Cambridge, O., July 28. — Noble county officials at Belle Valley arrested four men who are said to be implicated in wrecking a special train on the Pennsylvania railroad July 31 of last year. The men in custody are David Jones, Uriah Ray, Henry Fairhurst and Daniel Ketterer.

The train which was wrecked was carrying the Fourth O. N. G. home from camp and the Eighth O. N. G. from Marietta to Columbus, for duty in connection with the streetcar strike, on Governor Harmon's orders. A switch had been left open and the train, which was running at high speed, crashed into a number of cars loaded with brick. Eighteen men were injured, none of them seriously.

Pennsylvania railroad detectives have been working on the case quietly and it is said, have obtained confessions from two men which led to the arrests.

Pinchot Disagrees With Taft

Pinchot Insists People Cheated at Controllor Bay.

Washington, July 28.—"The president's defense of his course in the Controllor bay affair shows how hard it is to make a good excuse for a bad mistake."

This was the opinion Gifford Pinchot, ex-forester, expressed on Taft's explanation of the alleged "grab" of the key to Alaska's transportation. He asserted that the explanation did not explain.

"In spite of all explanations," he said, "the fact remains that Mr. Taft in opening the lands around Controllor bay without notice to the public, has given the interests behind Ryan an opportunity to acquire the key to the channel of Controllor bay before the public knew what was going on."

A RARE SEASON.

A St. Louis traveling man, making his first trip through North Dakota, woke up one May morning to find the ground covered with snow.

"For heaven's sake," he asked the hotel clerk disgustedly, "when do you have summer out in this country?"

"I don't know," replied the clerk. "I have only been here eleven months."—Success.

Pretty Luncheon Idea

A clear glass bowl such as is used for goldfish, filled with carbonated water, will, if nasturtiums and leaves are placed in it soon become a mass of frostlike moisture. The escaping gas in the water creeps over each leaf and flower, making the whole seem covered with dew. For luncheon on a hot day it is the most refreshing bit of coolness imaginable.

GELATINE PUDDING—Soak one-half of a box of gelatine in one-half cupful of cold water. Scald one and one-half cupfuls of milk in a double boiler, pour it over the yolks of four eggs beaten with one-half cupful of sugar. Return to the double boiler and stir until the mixture thickens. Take from the fire, add the soaked gelatine, stir until dissolved and strain. Flavor with one teaspoonful of vanilla, add quickly the whites of the eggs whipped to a stiff froth, and as soon as well mixed turn the pudding into a wetted mold.

Interesting Land Case Decided by Judge Curtin In Favor of Defendants

Title to Quite a Body of Valuable Land

WAS DRAWN IN QUESTION

Elaborate Opinion Holding Against Claimants.

The decision has just been received from Judge Curtin in the case of Index Van Pelt and others against Mary H. Rodgers and others, affirming the title in the defendants.

Perhaps no local civil case in recent years has aroused as much interest throughout the county. The amount of money involved, the peculiar circumstances and the points of law to be decided, are all out of the ordinary.

In 1847 Peter Hess deeded to his daughter Caroline Parrett 150 acres of land, the grant is "unto the said Caroline Parrett and the heirs of her body if the said Caroline shall die before her husband, Augustus Parrett, then the right to be vested in her said husband so long as he remains her widower, if she bear no heirs then to her said husband, Augustus Parrett during his natural life-time, at the end of his life to fail back to my heirs to be equally divided among them." In 1849 Caroline Parrett and her husband, Augustus Parrett, redeeded the land to her father, Peter Hess, who on the same day by deed of general warranty, conveyed the land to Caroline's husband, Augustus Parrett; soon after this the land was conveyed by Augustus Parrett and his wife, Caroline Parrett to Samuel Morris and by him through an unbroken chain of title to the present occupants, Mary H. Rodgers, Jos. D. Rodgers, John W. Rodgers, L. H. Rodgers, James Draise, J. L. Hess and John Hyde. Plaintiffs claim that the deed of 1847 from Peter Hess to his daughter, Caroline Parrett, vested in her only a fee tail estate and that when she redeeded the land to her father, Peter Hess, she conveyed to him only a life estate and that the remainder of the fee was still held by the heirs of her body. Judge Curtin in his decision, however, holds otherwise. After discussing at great length the deed of 1847 and the circumstances surrounding the execution of the same, the Judge says: "As already indicated the deed itself shows that the person who drew it was evidently ignorant of the nature and incidents of a fee tail; that by the express language of the deed itself the grantor assumed to eliminate some of the necessary incidents of that estate, and convey the reversion to the heirs of the grantor, he being then living; that this reversion and the husband's life estate were made dependent upon the performance of an impossible condition; that the habendum clause of the deed indicates that the grantor intended the grant to be to Caroline Parrett and her heirs; and lastly the evidence shows that by the deed delivered in 1849 the grantor and Caroline Parrett and Augustus treated the conveyance of 1847 as having been in fee to Caroline, and the will of the grantor made about the same time refers to the matter in the same sense.

In view of all these matters we are bound to assume that the grantor used the words "heirs of her own body" in the deed in their technical sense with the intention of vesting an estate of inheritance in the children of Caroline Parrett. I do not think so. And I find that it was not his intention so to do. It is not necessary to go further and conjecture just what character of an estate the grantor did intend to convey, for if it was not his intention to, and he did not by said deed vest an estate of inheritance in the children of Caroline, the plaintiffs can not recover in this action. From the view I have taken of this case it renders it unnecessary for me to examine and state my views in regard to the several special defenses interposed by the defendants.

Judgment will therefore, be for the defendants."

The plaintiffs were represented by Humphrey Jones and the defendants by Creamer, Creamer & Thompson and Post & Reid.

Two Persons Flirt With Death

Dale Miller, of Jeffersonville, escaped death by a hair's breadth Wednesday morning when he attempted to ride his wheel across the D. T. & I. railroad between two cuts of cars. Just as he rode between them the cuts started together. Young Miller jumped and escaped without injury, but the wheel was demolished.

Lee Harper, a farmer living west of Jeffersonville, also had a very close call from death this week, when a team ran away while a neighbor was threshing. In trying to reach his team, he ran in front of the runaway team and the wagon tongue caught him. A moment later the team crashed into a gate. Mr. Harper was badly bruised, but not seriously injured.

WOOD TO BE TRIED SOON FOR NON-SUPPORT OF WIFE IN THE PROBATE COURT

Chief Devaney went to New Holland Thursday and brought back Milton Wood, the young man held there for non-support of his family of three, a wife and two small children.

Wood was placed in the local jail. Mayor Allen filing a mittimus for his appearance before Judge Patton, where his case will receive attention.

Mrs. Wood has taken up her abode with her mother in this city, and Wood claims that it is through the interference of his wife's parents that the trouble occurred, and that he was coming to this city Thursday to see her, and if possible effect a reconciliation. However he did not seem very anxious to face his wife's parents.

Some New Developments Many Legal Complications In "Wrong Horse" Case

A new turn was taken in the case of E. W. Wilson against Robert Rutherford, in which the defendant was accused of securing a horse that did not rightfully belong to him, when Attorney F. A. Chaffin filed a motion in Common Pleas court to dissolve the attachment which Attorney Harry Rankin secured when Rutherford deposited a cash bond with Mr. Chaffin.

When the case was tried before Mayor Allen, Rutherford was bound over to court in $200 bond, and he placed this amount in the hands of Attorney F. A. Chaffin and asking him to become his bondsman, which was done. Following this Attorney Rankin filed a damage suit against Rutherford and attached the money in Mr. Chaffin's hands.

An attempt to compromise the suit was turned down by Mayor Allen. The civil suit was taken before Jus-

Dogs Kill Sheep Man Kills Dogs

Dogs visited a flock of sheep owned by Mr. L. M. Irvin, of near Jeffersonville, one day this week, and killed a number of fine sheep and injured many more before they were discovered by a man employed by Mr. Irvin.

When the dogs were discovered Mr. Irvin secured a shot gun and started out to rid the neighborhood of the dogs. When the animals saw the two men approaching they fled, but were pursued and one of them was killed, while a large bull dog was badly wounded but got away.

Mr. Irvin thinks he has succeeded in putting an end to the raids upon his sheep for the present at least.

Hazen Morse's 2 Famous Remedies MORSE'S GLYCEROLE

—a non secret, purely-vegetable compound, scientifically blended. It braces, tones and invigorates the debilitated system—calms and strengthens the nerves.

It acts as a tonic—not as a depressant—as do many so-called nerve-quieting remedies, which contain opiates, and which may give temporary relief.

It is a true specific for sleeplessness, brain fog, nervous debility, feverishness, hysteria, etc. It builds up the convalescent and quiets fretful, teething infants—is palatable to the most sensitive stomach. PRICES 50c AND $1 PER BOTTLE.

MORSE'S DYSPEPSYN, Known in Canada and Great Britain as Malloepsyn

—is a wonderful tonic for the entire digestive tract. It revivifies the secretions of gastric juices, arouses the sluggish liver and frees the clogged intestines. Exact formula on each bottle.

Horace O. Bayfield, the celebrated London physician, scientist and writer, in a letter to Mr. Morse, in part said: "I have used your preparation, Malloepsyn (Dyspepsyn, in U. S.) for a number of years and have entirely ceased using any other."

The London Lancet, the highest medical authority in the world, in reviewing Malloepsyn (Dyspepsyn) says: "In this preparation are skillfully combined the digestive agents—pepsin, pancreatin and diastase, with the lacto-phosphate of lime. * * * Apart from its trustworthy nature as an efficient aid to digestion, it possesses properties which make it of TONIC VALUE. This formula is an excellent one." PRICES 50c AND $1 PER BOTTLE.

Mr. Hazen Morse, in arranging with Blackmer & Tanquary and other dealers in Washington C. H. to distribute his remedies, it was distinctly understood that the dealer selling should refund to every well-meaning, dissatisfied purchaser the purchase price, without question. Mr. Morse has letters from over 1,000 physicians praising his remedies. This is why he has confidence in their efficiency.

LILAC BRANCHES.

Far back in my memories of the past I hear these words repeated by a sweet voice on bright mornings in the spring, and I see before my eyes the little street in a quiet quarter where I was awakened every morning in May by the refrain, "Lilac branches! Lilac branches!"

The first time I heard them I opened my window and saw the slight form of a young girl carrying on her head a heavy basket.

The next morning at sunrise I saw a young girl of 20 with naked feet, a beautiful unspoiled child of nature, with large blue eyes and a wealth of auburn hair which covered her shoulders and back like a mantle of spun glittering copper.

No doubt she had picked her burden along the country paths before the break of day and was now selling the fresh, dewy flowers, attracting buyers by her simple melody: "Lilac branches! Lilac branches!"

"Good morning, little one. How much are your flowers?"

"Twenty sous the bunch, without counting."

"Please let me have five, will you? They are for Mamie."

"And who is Mamie, pray?"

"A girl who is very dear to my heart."

"Oh, then the price is different. I do not charge lovers so much for my flowers."

She mounted the stone steps and I opened the door. "How well I remember this apparition of spring on the threshold. This girl was beautiful, a sage beauty, with deep and soulful eyes."

"For Mamie," she said with a smile. "And this is for you," I said, handing her a five francs piece.

"But this money—"

"Keep it. I am so happy this morning. It is my first bouquet of love."

Her face beamed.

"Then may God bless you," she said earnestly.

"What is your name?" I asked.

"Lilac branches," she hummed and sped away.

Since that she brought me fresh lilacs for Mamie every morning, and when Mamie saw the flowers she was as happy as a child, and I told her of the young girl.

Where did she come from and what was the mystery of her laborious life, for the basket was heavy and her dusty feet showed she had walked far. I asked her, but she would not tell. What did it matter? Mamie also spoke to her, but still she kept her secret and said she had nothing to tell.

Thus it was all spring.

When the next spring came, I once more heard the sweet voice, but my windows remained closed. Lilac Branches stopped in front of my house and sang louder as if to call me.

The next day she knocked at my door. She was as beautiful as before, with her burden of flowers, and her thoughtful eyes.

"And Mamie?" she asked.

"Mamie is dead," I whispered.

Lilac Branches looked at me sad and silent. It looked as if she wanted to say something, but tears came into her eyes and she walked away.

The next morning I found at dawn on my doorstep the whole basket of lilacs, with a slip of paper on which was written: "For Mamie."

It was her whole day's load she had left and the lilacs were the most beautiful I had ever seen.

Alas, she had misunderstood me, and the next morning I said to her: "I thank you with all my heart, Lilac Branches, but Mamie is dead only to me."

My little flower girl never came back. She was too tactful to arouse sad memories in my soul by her song, but the sweet tune has never died in my heart to this day.—Max Villeneuve.

A SIGN FOR THE SURGEON.

"Of course," said the surgeon who had operated for appendicitis, "there will be a scar."

"That's all right," replied the patient. "Leave any kind of a mark on me like that will prevent some strange doctor from coming along and operating again."

Creamed Mushrooms

One can of imported "button" mushrooms will serve a half dozen people, as it is a rich "concoction." I call it such, as the recipe is original with me. Make a nice cream sauce. I usually take about three or four tablespoonfuls of melted butter in a bowl, adding flour to make a smooth, thick paste, and a little salt. Set bowl in an ordinary frying pan with just enough water to keep from boiling; cook gradually, adding milk to make a smooth sauce. Now add mushrooms previously boiled a few moments in their own juice with a teaspoonful of salt. Pour off juice before adding to the creamed sauce. Then add hickory nut or pecan nut kernels and let stand a few moments before serving as patties or with hot biscuits or any rolls or bread preferred. This is a delicious recipe and goes nicely after bouillon or with a nice salad, or alone with yourself and husband or friend, when company, etc., are not in demand.

Glazed Currant Buns

Glazed currant buns—Soften a cake of compressed yeast in ½ cup of scalded and cooled milk and add to a pint of the same. Stir in about 3 cups of flour, beat until very smooth, then cover and set to rise. When light add ½ cup of sugar, ½ cup of softened butter, 1 teaspoon of salt, 3 eggs, 1 cup of cleaned currants and about 3 cups of flour. Knead until elastic and set to rise. When doubled in bulk, roll out into a sheet and cut into rounds. Set the rounds a little distance apart in a baking sheet, and when doubled in bulk bake about 25 minutes. Brush over with thin starch (a teaspoon of cornstarch to a cup of boiling water), sprinkle thickly with granulated sugar and return to the oven to glaze. Repeat the glazing process until a heavy coating is formed. This recipe makes two pans of buns.

Liver Cheese

Soak a lamb's liver and heart in cold water until the blood is disengaged. Wash thoroughly; place in a deep stewpan with a calf's tongue (or three lambs' tongues) and a half pound of fresh lean pork. Tie up loosely in a thin bit of muslin five cloves, six all-spice berries and a half bay leaf. Add this to the meat with a scant teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. Pour over barely enough boiling water to cover and simmer gently for four hours. Discard the tubes, all the fat and gristle and put the meat through the food chopper. Add more salt and pepper to taste and just enough pot liquor to moisten. Pack in a greased, straight sided pan, cover with a plate and small weight and let stand in a cold place for 24 hours. Slice for luncheon.

Poison Ivy

The poison ivy can be distinguished by the fact that its leaves have only three leaflets, its flowers are in loose, slender, auxiliary panicles. The smooth fruit is pale, brown. It is found in moist, shady places, and presents two forms, one erect and the other climbing. It clambers over rocks and fences and by means of aerial roots ascends the trunks of the tallest trees. When bruised, it exudes a milky juice which becomes black on exposure to the air, and on fabrics makes a stain indelible to all ordinary solvents. A country remedy which has proven effective for poison ivy is ordinary lard, with sufficient prepared chalk to make a thick paste. Apply often, rubbing well into the poisoned surface.

Irish Moss Blanc Mange

One-half cup of Irish moss, 1 quart of milk, 1 saltspoon of salt, 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Soak the moss in cold water 15 minutes. Pick over, wash, tie in lace bag, and put it into the double boiler with the milk. Boil 30 minutes, or until a few drops of it will thicken when put on a cold plate. Add the salt, strain and flavor. Pour into a cold, wet mold or in small ones or cups, or break off a piece of an egg-shell as large as a 10-cent piece, pour out the egg, rinse shell, stand upright in a pan of meal and fill with the blanc mange. Serve with sugar and cream, also with apple or apple jelly, or put 1-2 a peach or any crushed fruits in bottom of cup before filling.

Strawberry Pudding

Mash one quart of strawberries with one cupful of powdered sugar. Let them stand while you make a syrup of one cupful each of sugar and water. When this has boiled for 20 minutes mix with it one ounce of gelatin dissolved in one-half pint of water. Take the syrup from the fire and strain the strawberries through a fine sieve into it. Stand the bowl containing the mixture on ice and whip briskly for five minutes, then add the whipped whites of four eggs and keep beating until it begins to thicken. Mold in cups, turn out when firm, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve with whipped cream.

Our Grocery Clerk

Says He Was Stung

Oh, I thought I had Juliet going today, and all through a streak of luck that I might have known was too good to be true.

I started out to tell you that about ten minutes away from noon today the loveliest little peach that ever went with cream blew into the shop. And oh, sugar! she drifted right over to me, leaned half way over the counter and smiled.

Was I tickled? Ask me not. Aside from the personal satisfaction of having a high-grade sale of merchandise crisscrossing an inch away from my nose, there was the effect on Juliet to be considered. And believe me, Juliet was taking it all in from her desk.

"Would you mind minding this package for me until I return?" the prize-winner cooed. Would I mind minding it? Aw, cut it out!

Then she faded, and in five minutes two full-grown cops were trying to convince me that I ought to go to the station house with them. The package was stolen, swiped, pinched, purloined! I don't know whether I'm out of the woods yet or not, but Juliet is still laughing.

The seal of Oliver Cromwell, now in the possession of a prominent family in Wales, is a plain gold mounted cornet drum stone five-eighths of an inch in diameter. It dates from 1653 and was used on several of his deeds. The whole of the Lord's Prayer is engraved upon it.

Philippine Pigs.

Army officers partaking of Philippine meals should know that the natives make great preparations for the killing of a pig. When the owners are ready to kill, the pig is taken upstairs into the kitchen, where it lives luxuriously on boiled rice, is bathed every day and prepared for slaughter like a sacrificial victim. "If you are personally acquainted with a pig of this sort and know the day set for its decease," says one writer, "you may send your servant out to buy fresh pork, otherwise you had better stick to chicken and fish." This advice is given because of the tendency of the native to turn his "rooters" into scavengers.—Army and Navy Journal.

"I can. But a day on a farm is no twenty-minute sketch."

"I understand that."

YOUR WANT AD
USE NO UNNECESSARY WORDS
NOR OMIT A NECESSARY ONE

A want ad may be too short as well as too long.

There ought to be, always, a rational brevity---but this should not preclude a touch of "human interest"---the statement of such facts as will give the advertisement a certain definiteness instead of vagueness.
